Lisa Cooper, MD, MPH, is the James F. Fries Professor of Medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Dr. Cooper is an internist, social epidemiologist, researcher, and author.

Dr. Cooper’s research focuses on ways to improve health outcomes and reduce racial and income disparities in healthcare through communication skills, cultural competence, and shared decision-making.

Dr. Cooper is also the Director of the Johns Hopkins Center to Eliminate Cardiovascular Disparities.

SPEAKER
Lisa Cooper, MD, MPH
Johns Hopkins University

TIME
Thursday, December 3, 2015
4–5:30 p.m.

LOCATION
Billings Auditorium P-117

Refreshments will be served

Please RSVP to bucksbaum-cooper.eventbrite.com